What Sort of a Father are You?

What sort of a father are you to your boy?

Do you know if your standing is good?

Do you ever take stock of yourself and check up

Your accounts with your boy as you should?

Do you ever reflect on your conduct with him?

Are you all that a father should be?

Do you send him away when you're anxious to read?

Or let him climb onto your knee?

Is a book more important to you than his talk?

Do you find that his chatter annoys?

Would you rather be quiet than have him about?

Do you send him away with his toys?

Have you time to bestow on the boy when he comes

With his questions—to tell him the truth?

Or do you neglect him and leave him alone

To work out the problems of youth?

Do you ever go walking with him hand in hand?

Do you plan little outings for him?

Does he ever look forward to romping with you,

Or are you eternally grim?

What memories pleasant of you will he have

In the years that are certain to come?

Will he look back on youth as a season of joy,

Or an age that was woefully glum?

Come, father, reflect! Does he know you today,

And do you know him now as you should?

Is gold so important to you that you leave

It to chance that your boy will be good?

Take stock of yourself and consider the lad;

Your time and your thought are his due.

How would you answer your God should He ask,

"What sort of a father are you?"

Suggestions for Fathers' Clubs

That one general meeting for everybody under the auspices of the Federated Fathers' Clubs be held in the Auditorium during the winter.

Do not take too many subjects for an evening.

Start the meeting on time, stick to the texts and get through.

This program is presented by the Federation simply as suggestive topics.

Each Club should not forget local conditions and for this reason a blank line is left on each month's program.

Fifteen minutes at each meeting set aside for handshaking and getting personally acquainted.

A question box.

Subjects submitted by members for next year's program.

Inviting members of the Board of Education and teachers that they may know the spirit of co-operation idea.

Several meetings at which mothers and teachers' clubs and all women in the district are invited.

Make an honest effort to advance the Fathers' Club idea; the result will be surprising.

Membership should include the head of tomorrow's household.

"If I knew you and you knew me,
'Tis seldom we would disagree;
But never having yet clasped hands,
Both often fail to understand
That each intends to do what's right,
And treat each other 'honor bright.'
How little to complain there'd be
If I knew you and you knew me."

The Town of No Good

Kind friends, have you heard of the town of No-Good
On the banks of the river Slow,
Where the Some-time-or-other scents the air
And the soft Go-easies grow?
It lies in the valley of What's-the-use,
In the Province of Let-'er-slide;
It's the home of the reckless I-don't-care,
Where the Give-it-ups abide.

The town is as old as the human race,
And it grows with the flight of years;
It is wrapped in the fog of the idler's dreams;
Its streets are paved with discarded schemes,
And are sprinkled with useless tears.

—(Author Unknown.)

Is Father Too Old To Learn?

“But why, you ask me, should this tale be told,
To men grown old, or who are growing old?
It is too late! Ah, nothing is too late
Till the tired heart shall cease to palpitate.
Cato learned Greek at eighty, Sophocles
Wrote his grand Œdipus, and Simonides
Bore off the prize of verse from his compeers,
When each had numbered more than four score years;
And Theopratus, at four-score and ten,
Had begun his ‘Characters of Men.’
Chaucer, at Woodstock, with the nightingales,
At sixty wrote the ‘Canterbury Tales’;
Goethe, at Weimar, toiling to the last,
Completed ‘Faust’ when eighty years were past.
These are indeed exceptions, but they show
How far the gulf stream of our youth may flow
Into the Arctic regions of our lives,
Where little else than life survives.”

“New occasions, teach new duties: Time makes ancient good uncouth: They must upward still, and onward, who would keep abreast of Truth.”

STYRMEST STEVENSON
Founder of the Fathers' Club

Little did I dream when formulating the Fathers' Club idea that such great interest would be shown in so short a time. The first pebble thrown on the calm sea of facts regarding the present day fatherhood has created wave after wave until the whole United States seems to have come within the circle of its influence, and it bids fair to become more popular than the movies. New York, St. Louis, Des Moines, Sioux City, Omaha and Council Bluffs newspapers and magazines have devoted columns to the idea; also have innumerable papers in smaller places favorably commented upon it. Fraternal publications have recognized the fraternity of fatherhood.

It is deemed advisable that with this first issue of the Federated Fathers' Club Program for the years 1914-1915 space be given to the birth and object of the Club as a help and guide to the recently organized clubs and those to be.

On the night of May 12, 1913, about thirty fathers of the Madison Avenue School District met in the school house and organized the first Fathers' Club with this sentiment:

"The object of the FATHERS' CLUB is to bring the fathers in closer touch with the children, the schools, the teachers and board of education in an endeavor to bring about the very best results for the betterment of the children. Membership is limited to males, 21 years of age or over."

They adopted as their slogan, "Make the Indifferent Different," and decided emphatically to be non-partisan and non-sectarian, and unanimously declared for a campaign of education of the fathers, for we realized that far too many fathers are mechanically performing their appointed tasks while the real father interest and love is not in evidence, and that when men remain in the lowlands of self-interest or abide in the swamps of self-indulgence, their views of fatherhood are necessarily limited. They adopted a broad and instructive program for the year, which was carried out in its entirety with the best local talent, which included first the common, every-day citizen, editors, professors, senators, attorneys, doctors, ministers, judges, business men and mechanics at the meetings held once a month in the school house.

Organizing a Fathers' Club is no different than any other similar club. A meeting is called by interested persons and the regular parliamentary usages observed. A simple constitution and by-laws adopted, broad in their scope. A firm determination to obtain accurate knowledge of conditions with the idea of betterment to be gained through careful comparison and intelligent research. The Fathers' Club idea is first of all to get right with yourself then co-operate—not antagonize.

Membership dues should be as small as is practicable.

Expenses should be nominal, for, with the Fathers' Club idea, each member searches himself for the knowledge, and the program should be carried out by local talent, preparing themselves for the task, for

"I learned it in the meadow path,
I learned it on the mountain stairs—
The best things any mortal hath
Are those which every mortal shares."

Cordially yours,
STYMEST STEVENSON.
